

At Home Or In The Office

Become a Land Trust Leader

UVLT's work is guided by its volunteer Trustees and committee members. Additionally, our Advisory Council meets annually to help shape our vision for the future of the Upper Valley.

To learn more about UVLT's committees – fundraising, events, marketing, lands and stewardship – or the Advisory Council, contact Jeanie McIntyre, UVLT's President: jeanie.mcintyre@uvlt.org or (603) 643-6626 ext.101.

News Clipping

Do you subscribe to a local newspaper such as the Eagle Times, the Vermont Standard, or Littleton Courier? You can help us stay on top of local coverage of UVLT projects and other conservation news by clipping and sending relevant articles.

Contact Lorie Hood, UVLT's Office Manager to assist with news clipping: lorie.hood@uvlt.org or (603) 643-6626 ext.101.

Town Lands Records Research

One way to help build greenways of contiguous conserved parcels – as well as build UVLT's membership – is to notify neighbors when we conserve an adjacent property. We rely on volunteers to identify these abutting landowners by collecting information from town tax maps and public lists and records. We'll help you get started. And for those who really like to have their head in the books for brief periods of time, some deed research would also be helpful.

Contact Peg Merrens, UVLT Vice President Conservation to help with town lands research: peg.merrens@uvlt.org or (603) 643-6626 ext.112.

Use Your Creative Side

Photographing Conserved Lands

Got a camera and an eye for photo composition? Visit recently conserved lands to take photos for use in UVLT's publications, slide shows, and website.

Writing

Looking for an outlet for your writing skills? We periodically need help with newsletter articles on recent conservation projects, press releases, and other special writing assignments.

Contact Nora Doyle-Burr, UVLT Programs Coordinator to help with writing or photography: noradoyle-burr@uvlt.org or (603) 643-6626 ext.102.

Easement Monitoring

UVLT's volunteer Land Stewards help us meet one of our most fundamental obligations - the annual monitoring of conserved lands. Volunteers may take on as many monitoring assignments as they wish and may work in pairs or alone when visiting conserved properties. Training for monitoring volunteers is offered once yearly.

Trail Building

UVLT needs volunteers to help create or improve trails on UVLT-conserved lands where landowners have generously allowed for public access. No prior trail building experience is required – just your energy and enthusiasm!

Trail Stewardship

Adopt a trail in your community! In order to make trails available to the public on conserved lands, UVLT needs local trail stewards to take on maintenance of UVLT trails, keeping trail routes well-marked and clear of fallen limbs, and consulting UVLT should other problems arise. Individuals, families, or groups may adopt a trail.

Connecticut River Campsites

Hundreds of paddlers enjoy UVLT's primitive campsites along the Connecticut River every summer. If you would like to help out with periodic campsite maintenance throughout the paddling season, or assist with special campsite improvement projects, contact us.

Out & About

Field Trips

Helping out with UVLT's field trips can involve greeting and signing in participants, hiking at the back of the group or helping with shuttle service on one-way hikes.

Do you enjoy sharing your knowledge and love of the natural world with others? Lead a field trip for kids or adults to one of UVLT's conserved properties to look at birds, wildflowers, wildlife signs, or another aspect of a site's ecology, discover land use history, or teach an on-site workshop on photography, painting or... You name it! UVLT staff provides logistical support, event promotion, and registration.

Baking & Food Prep for Special Events

If you enjoy baking and cooking and sharing your creations with others, UVLT can supply an appreciative audience! We periodically need help baking cookies, preparing simple finger foods, or making pies for UVLT meetings and events.

UVLT Information Table

Travel to fairs, farmers' markets, and other special events around the Upper Valley to help us staff our information display. Those who are willing to volunteer their time in support of UVLT are some of our best spokespersons.

Fundraising Events

Among UVLT's most effective membership building tools are the gatherings hosted by UVLT members in their homes to introduce us to friends and neighbors. You provide the food and drink; we do the talking. This is one of the best ways you can help build understanding and support for land conservation in your community!
